ENERGY ANSWER

WHEN ELECTRICITY FAILS, NATURAL GAS GENERATORS PROVIDE POWER

Extreme weather, construction and other unanticipated events can interrupt electrical service. If your electricity does go out—at any time—a natural gas generator will provide your home with the power it needs.

Natural gas generators react within seconds of an outage. Once power is restored, the load is switched back to the utility and the generator shuts off—all automatically, whether you're home or away.

Bring the peace of mind to your home with a natural gas generator. Find a participating contractor at WashingtonGas.com/May for a free estimate.
